At Snell Laboratory, our goal is to get our lower extremity amputee patients back in the game as quickly and completely as possible. As part of the gamelan, we are dedicated to fielding questions from the patient, family and re-hab team in order to make that possible.

Our practitioners participate in ongoing coaching and training in the latest technologies available to the lower limb amputee. And our expertise extends from fitting and fabricating basic prostheses for the lower activity level patient to the newest microprocessor knee, for those pursuing active lifestyles.

Our objective is to ensure that our patients never feel “out in left field” during the course of their daily activities.

Robert Byrd lives a busy and productive lifestyle, which includes not only working full time as a market researcher, but also devoting weekends to coaching Little League softball in Little Rock.
